

What have the Games got to do with me?

Statements on cards are about the importance of the Games for young people

Organise statements from the ones you most believe to be true to those you believe to be least true.

Decide if the Olympics will, in your opinion, benefit the 'youth of Britain'. E.g. the Games will provide a lasting legacy of stadia that young people will aspire to perform in.

The venues, school and community education programmes, will help to increase participation in sport and physical activity among young people.	Watching British athletes take part in the Olympics will inspire young children to take part in sport in the future.	More young people in Britain will train for sport hoping to take part in the London 2012 Olympics.
Less than a third of young people are not active enough to enjoy a healthy lifestyle. Young people will be encouraged to be healthier because of the 2012 Olympics.	Games will be everyone's Games – an inclusive and wholly-integrated part of an inspiring 60-day celebration of youth, sport and culture.	The Paralympic Games will mean improved infrastructure including more accessible sporting venues and better public transport for those with disabilities.
The 'Green Games' approach shows young people with environmental concerns that sport can be a driver of change in areas of interest to them.	The Olympics idea inspires people to be the best they can.	London 2012 will demonstrate to young people the power of the Games to bring the world together.

Quotes from: Think keynote, Lord Coe, chairman London 2012, on delivering the greenest games ever and Tanni, Paralympic champion from www.London2012.com